Lloyd Swan, superintendent of parks, shows sign at the Dixon Park Board meeting Thursday night, designed to eliminate confusion at city tennis courts. It had been brought to the attention of the board that some tennis players have not been exercising the proper etiquette required by the board to operate the courts properly. Board member Louise Corken is in the foreground. (Telegraph Photo)

Park Board demands action on tennis court work

The Dixon Park Board has decided to get tough with contractors and subcontractors on the long-delayed work to complete three tennis court projects.

The courts in question, at the high school, at Madison School and at Jefferson School, were to be finished in May of 1974 as part of the park expansion work under a master plan. The expansion work was financed by a $300,000 non-referendum bond issue.

The Dixon High School courts still need a final coating on the playing surface. Coating is needed at the Madison and Jefferson sites, too.

The bottleneck appears to be Maintenance Coating Co., of Addison, Ill., subcontractor to Lindquist Construction Co., for the final touches on the court surfaces.

Repeated pleas to Alan Caskey, park consultant on the master plan, and to Lindquist have proved fruitless.

Park Supt. Lloyd Swan told the board his latest inquiries were answered with the information that the coating firm would definitely be in Dixon next week.

Swan additionally provided the information that Lindquist had promised if Maintenance Coating fails to appear, Lindquist workers will try to do the job if materials can be obtained.

Members questioned the ability of the Lindquist workers to do a specialty job which was subcontracted.

Board President Ralph Contreras tended to blame Caskey. "He hasn't been doing his job," Contreras stated. "He should have been on these guys and had them doing it."

As to the argument by Maintenance Coating that weather has prevented them from doing the work, Pat Jones asserted, "The weather argument is just no good. The weather here and in Addison is just not the same."

Louise Corken said she was in favor of "contacting Lindquist and demanding the work be started by Monday."

"Just what do you want me to tell Lindquist?" asked Swan.

"Get the damn thing done," Contreras shot back.

Park Board Atty. Tomas Magdich explained the contract could be declared in default for not having been done in a reasonable amount of time. In doing so the board could seek appropriate damages if hiring another contractor cost more money to complete the job. Magdich assessed the chances of collecting such damages at about 65 per cent.

Contreras declared to the board "Let's make a decision." Jones offered "Let's pick a date to get back together. If something has not been done we can slam them on default. I favor taking the chance."

Mrs. Corken and George Weigle joined the call for action. The board decided it would like to see "substantial steps" taken on the contract by June 23.

Mrs. Corken, Weigle and Supt. of Recreation Rich Sedowski reported to the board they had picked a potential site for a tennis complex.

The area chosen, they said, would be on the Park District's Borden property, just west of the Dixon Rural fire station.

Reminded that the rural fire trustees had rejected a plan to build a new station near that site because of a sewer easement, members went to site maps and discovered the easement did, in fact, cross the park property. There is still potential for six courts, Sedowski felt.

The board voted to reduce the salary of Donald B. Raymond, secretary-treasurer and to appoint Sedowski as assistant secretary.

Raymond had asked the board to make the change. The combined salary of Raymond, his wife and car allowance amounts to $2,760 yearly.

He asked that figure be chopped by $55 per month to $2,100 per year. Sedowski will record board minutes and do other paper work. The $55 per month will be added to Sedowski's salary.

Raymond will continue to handle all the treasurer chores. The change is effective July 1.

The board gave final approval to a combined budget and appropriations ordinance. The $185,548 document had been on file for two weeks and a public hearing had been held.

In other action:

The board instructed Swan to purchase and install a slide at John Dixon Park. Swan was told to keep the purchase under $500.

—Paid monthly bills in the amount of $3,388.46.

Ford unveils proposal to spur construction of power plants

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford unveiled today proposals designed to spur the building of new power plants through liberalized tax write-offs and tax-deferred treatment of utility dividends that are reinvested.

Ford, in a statement, said he accepted and endorsed all recommendations on the subject presented to him by his labor-management committee that studied ways to hasten utility plant construction and the conversion of oil and gas-fired plants to use of coal as a power source.

Secretary of Labor John Dunlop told reporters the proposals would result in a tax break for utilities in fiscal year 1976 of between $500 million and $1 billion. He said members of the labor-management committee would carry the proposals to Congress personally.

At a briefing, Federal Energy Administrator Frank Zarb said the amount of energy the nation generates from nuclear power could increase from 2 per cent to about 20 per cent by the late 1980s "if we can get this program and solve other problems such as safeguards and disposal of nuclear wastes."

In a report to Ford dated May 21, the committee lamented the deferral or cancellation of utility construction projects and said this "may be expected to result in future energy shortages and serious restrictions to economic expansion."

Key committee recommendations endorsed by Ford included:

—Granting of a 12 per cent investment tax credit to utilities for an indefinite period, with application of the credit to work already in progress. Congress recently boosted the tax credit for utilities to 10 per cent from 4 per cent for a two-year period, but the committee said this did not go far enough.

—"The urgent need for equity capital in the electric utility industry," said the panel, "should be met by a legislative provision that dividends which are reinvested in new issue common stock of the company have tax deferred."

—Extension beyond the scheduled Dec. 31 expiration of a program for five-year fast tax writeoffs of pollution control facilities. In addition, Ford and the committee recommended the same favored tax treatment be granted for the expense of converting power plants to the use of coal.

—"Stretch out, as necessary, present environmental restrictions on energy production and use to reduce energy consumption and facilitate expansion of domestic energy output."

The labor-management committee began its report to Ford by estimating that at the end of last year utilities had postponed or canceled the building of 109 nuclear power plants and 126 coal-fired plants.

Beer garden decision ahead for Park Board

By WAYNE LYON

When the Dixon Park Board voted April 3 to allow the Dixon Petunia Festival to operate a beer garden in Page Park this year, they thought they were through with the issue.

Since that time there has been an election, resignation of one member, an appointment to fill the vacancy, so there are two new members on the board.

Meeting Thursday night at Park District headquarters, members got the word from Atty. Tomas Magdich they still face two votes on the beer garden issue.

Magdich told the board the motion they approved on April 3 was merely an "attitude of the board" sampling. That motion, researched in the minutes proved to be one granting permission for the beer garden if the Dixon City Council would declare the Petunia Festival an official city fair and issue a beer license.

Magdich, who serves as Dixon city attorney as well as the Park Board attorney, explained the full legal aspects of the situation.

"To make everything right," he asserted, "you are going to have to approve a motion to amend your park liquor ordinance or a motion to suspend enforcement of it during the time the beer garden is open."

"In addition you will have to work out an official lease agreement with the Petunia Festival Board on the premises where the beer garden is to be held."

That, he continued, would make everything legal. The dram shop insurance and license will have to be attached to the lease.

Magdich further clarified the situation. He said the City Council will have to set the hours and limitations of the special beer license. The Park Board, if it doesn't agree to the hours worked out, can, as lessor of the beer garden area, impose changes on the license.

"Certain things will have to be done in certain order," he concluded. "You must have another meeting before July 3 to do these things to get the whole thing on solid ground."

The board voted to consider the matters at an adjourned meeting Wednesday afternoon at 4:30 p.m. The City Council will consider the license matter Monday.

The beer garden situation is further clouded by the fears of two members they may be in conflict of interest if they vote on the matter.

Board President Ralph Contreras said after the meeting, and after Magdich had left, he felt he would have to abstain because the Petunia Festival Board has ordered all its trophies from RC Trophies, a sideline business he operates.

"I voted against the beer garden, as you remember," he remarked, "but since that time the trophy order has been placed with my company."

Louise Corken, elected to the board after the beer garden vote had been taken on April 3, said she felt she might be in conflict. Her husband, Thomas Corken, is a partner in the insurance agency which will be selling the dram shop insurance to the festival.

115 have applied

Dixon teacher using loophole for jobless pay

At least one classroom teacher in the Dixon School District will be receiving unemployment compensation this summer because of a loophole in the federal law which allows teachers to collect jobless pay.

Bill Stitzel, assistant superintendent for finance, told The Telegraph today the application of one teacher "had crossed his desk." It was a request for wage information for the past 12 months.

Stitzel said the teacher, as are all but a few in the system, is paid on a 12-month basis.

Stitzel additionally reported he had reports that four lunchroom aides, who work for two hours a day during the school year, were applying for benefits, but no pay information had been requested about them as yet.

A check with the Office of Unemployment Compensation in Rock Falls revealed that 115 area teachers have completed paperwork and are entitled to receive compensation. Dennis Gunia, manager of the office, estimates that between 135 and 150 teachers will have applied by the end of this week.

He indicated that there are approximately 1,000 teachers in the area who could potentially apply for the benefits.

Reports indicate teachers have filed for unemployment benefits in Rockford, Peoria, Springfield and Chicago.

An employee of the state employment office in Herrin reports not only teachers, but custodians, cooks and school-bus drivers have been filing unemployment claims.

What has brought this on is the Emergency Jobs Act, enacted by Congress and signed Dec. 31 by President Ford to expand special unemployment assistance to the unemployed.

The program is known as SUA.

An amendment to the appropriation of $15 million to fund SUA which would specifically exempt teachers from being eligible from benefits under the program was sponsored by Rep. John Erlenborn, R-Wheaton.

The legislation is currently bogged down in a dispute over money for improving railroad beds.

Erlenborn has warned that states which pay teachers claims for unemployment may find the federal government will not reimburse them and the states will have to pay all the awards given to teachers.

The amendment exempts teachers who had a contract during the school year just concluded and who have a contract for the next year.

Woody Lee, president of the 63,000-member Illinois Educational Association (IEA), said many of those applying are teachers who normally would have had summer jobs but could not find them this year.

Ben Brinkley, a director of the IEA, from Marion, has commented the federal legislation applies to local government and he considers teachers as part of that group.

Brinkley says teachers are being unfairly singled out for criticism.

Impasse reached in negotiations with teachers

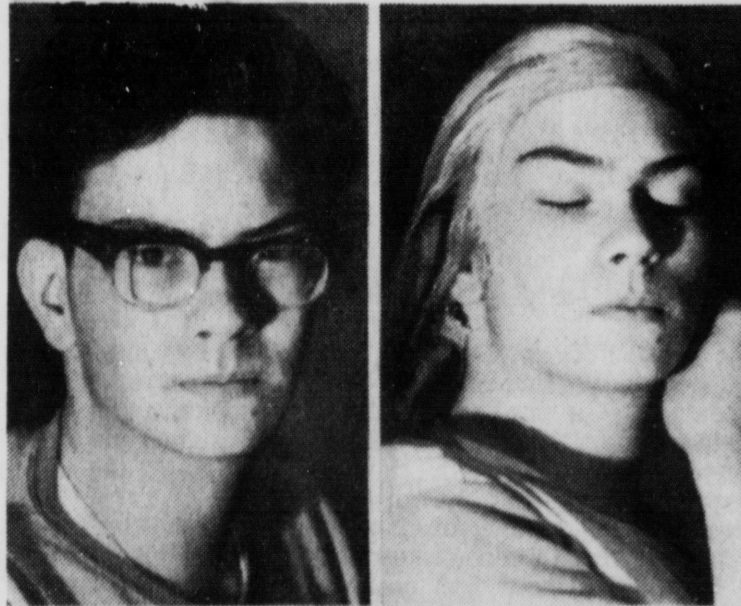

For the third time in a row the Dixon Teachers Association and the Dixon Board of Education have declared an impasse in collective bargaining negotiations and have asked the district to request the State Office of Education to provide a list of mediators which may be procured to meet with the local antagonists.

Neither the board representatives nor the teacher negotiators will comment on the negotiations, but The Telegraph has learned the talks, among other issues, broke down over salary demands.

The base for a beginning teacher in the district is $9,100.

The Telegraph also has learned other demands made by the teachers include a buddy arrangement whereby a teacher-adviser is assigned to each teacher who can be consulted on any question and who will be paid for advising the teacher asking consultation.

Another provision is that a teacher may take time off during the day for an hour or more, if a qualified substitute can be found, and the substitute is to be paid half day pay after relieving teachers for four hours. Principals are to keep track of the hours worked by the substitutes.

Last of federal tax rebates in the mail today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The last of the federal government's tax rebates were in the mail today, but the effect of the rebates on the economy may not be known for some time.

The Treasury Department said 63,221,161 tax rebates with a total value of $7,896,737,163 were sent to taxpayers.

Some straggler rebates — where there is doubt as to the amount to be returned or who is to receive it — may still be mailed in weeks ahead, but the last of the routine rebates have been mailed, a treasury spokesman said.

The treasury said it is ready to mail out about 34 million Social Security and railroad retirement bonus checks of $50 each as soon as the special appropriation has cleared Congress and is approved by the President.

The tax rebates were voted by Congress and approved by the President as part of a program to stimulate the economy by putting extra purchasing power in the hands of consumers.

The hope was that consumers would use the money to buy autos, appliances and other so-called big-ticket items and help push the nation's economy out of a deep recession.

Early results of the rebates in the first weeks after the government started mailing them were inconclusive.

For example, the Commerce

Department reported Thursday that retail sales were down nearly 1 per cent in the week ended June 7, the second weekly decline in a row. But prior to the two weeks ending June 7, retail sales were showing gains.

Some economists predicted that many taxpayers would use their rebates to pay off past debts or put them in savings accounts, which would result in less benefit to the economy.

Another part of the government's tax program to get the economy moving appeared to be having an impact. The Commerce Department said sales of single-family homes increased 25 per cent in April, the biggest monthly jump in 12 years.

A major factor in the increase appeared to be a tax credit for home buyers equal to 5 per cent of the purchase price of the home.

There also were these economic developments:

—Carla A. Hills, secretary of housing and urban development, said she was urging President Ford to veto a bill before him designed to encourage construction of 400,000 new homes in the next year.

The bill, which includes mortgage interest subsidies, also was criticized by White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen who said the increased federal borrowing caused by the bill would dampen any decline in interest rates and aid a limited group of "lucky families."

A national draft

Some people complain about capitalism and say how good the communist countries are to their people, for they all have work. If the United States is not a nice place to live, then why don't the people who complain about capitalism run away? America is free and allows anyone to go at any time.

The people do try to run away from communist countries, whenever they can, and many are shot for trying. Walls are built with armed guards to keep the slaves from escaping. Communist countries allow few tourists in to look around.

Over 400,000 legal immigrants are welcomed to America each year. Why do they want to come to a country that a few people say is a rotten place to live?

How can you protect yourselves from people, groups or armies that want to change your form of government from free enterprise to state control? You will need a good police force to maintain internal order. This police department must be under the control of the mayor and city council of each town. The armed services must be under the control of the President and Congress, both controlled by law. The President could send the armed services any place that needs quick service in order to correct a fault, but not more than a week. If the project needs more time, then Congress is called to declare war or call the armed service home.

Any time Congress declares war every citizen in the United States is placed under draft service. All are to receive the same pay as the private soldier, until the war is ended. This includes the President of the United States, Congress, the armed service, business and workers. Politicians would have no jurisdiction in the conduct of the fighting or supplies of war. This would be up to the military service.

Would we have many wars? Any war we did get into would be ended as soon as possible. When this country is at war there must be a complete censorship in order that TV crews and newspaper reporters who are sympathetic with the enemy cannot spread information that will detract from the United States' effort to win. We all know that this happened in both Korea and Vietnam, for they did not give the facts of what was happening behind the enemy lines.

Papadopoulos trial disgrace to Greece

By HENRY J. TAYLOR

Greece's Parliament approved on Saturday a new Constitution strengthening a President still to be elected. The plan is to make present Premier Constantine Karamanlis president. But, meanwhile, word leaks from inside Greece regarding the trumped-up trial and possible execution of former President George Papadopoulos and the truth about conditions behind the scenes in our NATO ally.

With the red star over Italy and with Turkey's political convolutions, a stable Greece is a strategic imperative in the American interest; indispensable to us in the Eastern Mediterranean. We need a friend—not an enemy—in Greece. And we had one in Papadopoulos: pro-American, pro-NATO, pro-free world and anti-Communist.

Thanks entirely to his government, he allowed Eleftheria, near Athens, to become a home port for our great 6th Fleet, including the immense aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt. Papadopoulos allowed the United States 12 other U.S. military stations, secret radar posts, strategic airfields on Crete and throughout Greece, and allowed us to sink deep in the Greek soil nuclear rocket silos.

For six long years Papadopoulos liberalized the Greek regime. In this he risked his neck for a Western principle, although constantly goaded by Greece's underground Communists and others for moving "too slow."

Democracy, of course, comes from the Greek word "demokratia." But the same fine people who invented democracy have repeatedly been the victims of "anarchos": anarchy. And Papadopoulos—scholarly, soft-spoken and instinctively courteous—designed his step-by-step liberation to guard the Greek people against this.

Consistent with Papadopoulos' liberation on a civilian basis, highly respected Deputy Premier Nicholas Makarezos resigned Sept. 30, 1973, and none of the 11 military men, including Makarezos, who helped Papadopoulos take power, was included in a new cabinet announced Oct. 8, and Ioannis Agathangelou, often called "the Greek Kissinger," was elevated to it.

But in one of modern history's most unfair ironies, Papadopoulos' liberation program backfired against him.

At 3 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 25, Papadopoulos and his wife, Despina, were at their modest seaside home near the village of Lagonissa, 40 kilometers on the way from Athens to Souion, when plotters led by a burly 6-foot-2 Brig. Gen. Dimitrios Ionidis, chief of the military police, contrived to arrest Papadopoulos and made Lieut. Gen. Phaidon Gizikis president.

The plotters immediately reversed all Papadopoulos' liberation steps, reversed his doctrine of not attacking Cyprus and in their failure ended up by recalling from Paris former Premier Karamanlis.

Karamanlis publicly announced his government's absolute amnesty for all leaders of the Papadopoulos 1967 take-over six years earlier. But the Greek Communists demanded their scalps and Karamanlis bent with the wind.

Today this is what is happening to them:

Papadopoulos and the others, including Makarezos, were sent to an Aegean island prison. Now they have been transferred to Piraeus, Athens' port, to stand trial this month.

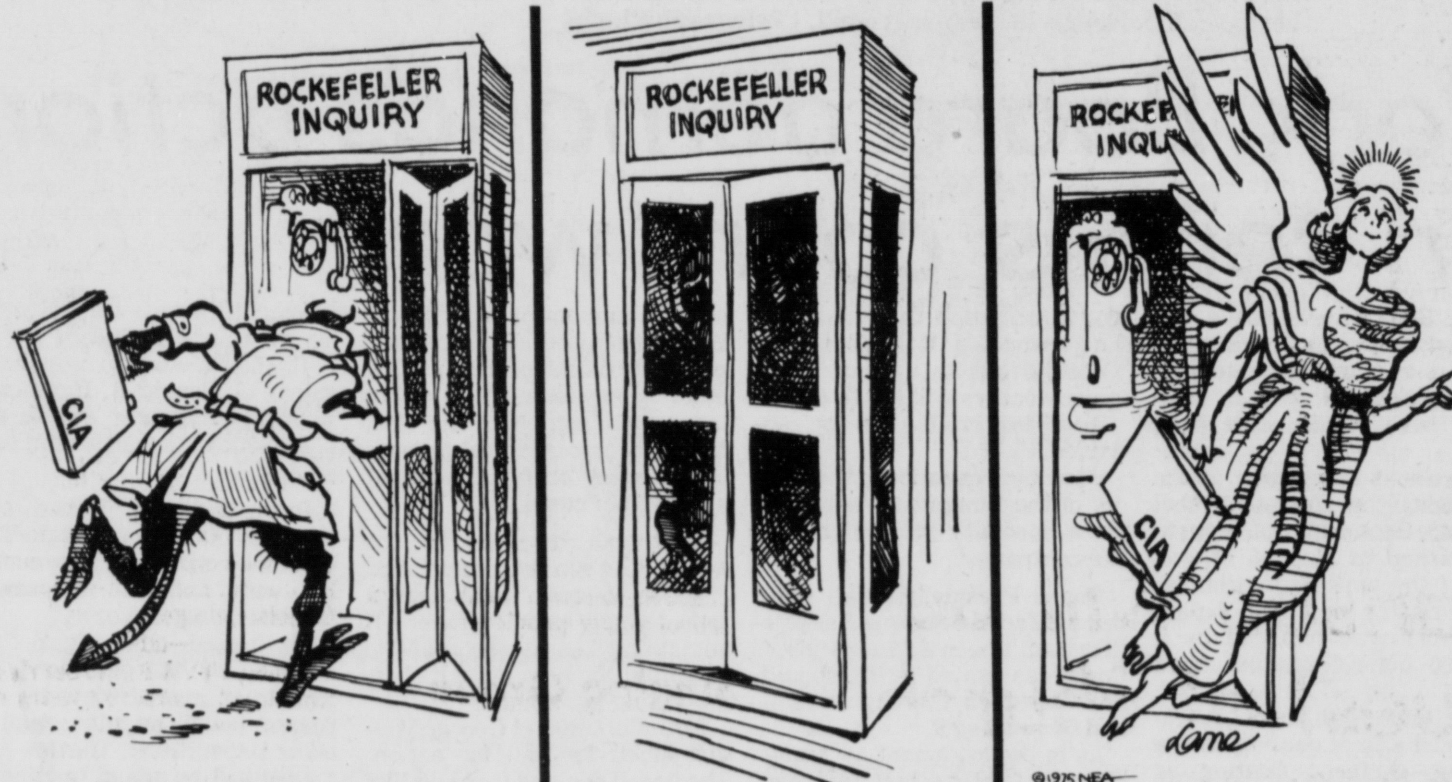

As on the island, each is held alone and in solitary confinement in a small, dingy prison cell. Rats, scorpions, lice, filth and horror are their ghastly companions. Each suffers at the terrible brink of sheer survival.

Ionidis, who overthrew the others, is also there—his attempted explanations largely ignored by the others. Distinguished Piraeus Mayor Aristides Skylitsis, famous throughout Greece for changing that seamy port into a beautiful garden, has been defeated for reelection. The Communists tore up 35,000 Skylitsis ballots to achieve this.

As before the Communist putsch in Portugal, young Red officers are infiltrating the higher Greek army commands and, along with this, the Communists are sending in arms, explosives, bombs, etc., in such abundance that they can fight in the streets on a victorious scale.

They equip children with Red flags in parades and you see the clenched-fist salute in public places. Organized demonstrators carry "Throw Out The American Bases," "Death To Papadopoulos" banners. Pro-American Mrs. Papadopoulos was seized and temporarily thrown into a jail for prostitutes to humiliate this gracious lady.

The trial of Papadopoulos has not only not one iota of legal grounds under international law. It is an utter disgrace to the Karamanlis government.

KKK beckons again

By TOM TIEDE

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Though it is clear that many citizens are fed up to their cowlies with contemporary America, it is not so clear what, if anything, they are doing about it. In at least a few cases however, and regrettably, they are joining the Ku Klux Klan. Weary of what they see as economic rot, tired to the bone of such moral experimentation as affirmative action, small but increasing numbers of Americans are looking for the old-time values under the bedsheets of the KKK.

The phenomenon, as yet widely unreported, is confirmed by Klan organizer David Duke of Baton Rouge. He, director of the Knights of the KKK, says the "invisible empire" is enjoying a revival of sorts, at least partly because of the times:

"There's no doubt economic trends affect political thinking. People are worried and they are coming to us. In a changing world they know the Klan is an organization that over the years has not compromised."

Compromise, no, but the Klan has apparently changed, and Duke represents the creep of its leading edge. Young (28), educated (history degree from Louisiana State University), Duke is a few miles more sophisticated than the ain't-saying rednecks who created the Klan following the Civil War and then nurtured it through thick and thin, mostly thin, for 110 years. Duke believes in white supremacy, to be sure, but he explains his bigotry in sociological rather than shoot-'em-up terms.

"Negroes," he says, "would prosper more in their own environment running their own affairs."

And he is not the only alteration of historic Klan cussedness. Klansmen now call cross-burning "cross-lighting"; women are being allowed membership and some voice in the still secret activities; Catholics, according to Duke, have been elevated to favor and "membership in Southern Louisiana is now at least two-thirds Catholic."

Even violence has been set aside as Klan policy, says Duke, and when people join his Knights they swear not to conspire to commit a violent act "except in self defense."

Because of the history of the night-riding order, suspicion remains concerning the Klan's new image. Duke, for example, speaks softly of blacks during interviews but warns Klan audiences that "big black faces with big lips" are after every white man's job. And yet his posture and the new Klan rhetoric seem to be winning converts, and sociologically interesting converts.

"We have so many Vietnam veterans we sometimes resemble the VFW. We have young people organized on practically every major college campus. As for young marrieds, they are our staples."

The new recruits, in other words, represent "the energy of our nation."

Duke refuses to put a numerical figure to this energy. And while acknowledging the Klan as growing, the FBI believes membership is "probably only around 1,500." Yet the mathematics of the Klan revival seem far less important than the reason for it. Duke says white people need a political arm of their own, "a voice for our culture," and the idea is apparently being received by others than hopeless peckerwoods, but in fact, fairly normal Americans.

Duke says, and correctly, that many young white people are convinced they are second-class citizens in a nation that has, at least recently, centered its assistance efforts on the poor, the minorities, and those people who for physical, mental, ethical or political reasons are classified as square pegs. It can be argued that whites have not been ignored, as they may suppose, but the operative point here is that many still suppose it, and so the risk lies in continuing to ignore at least their supposition.

Vast numbers of white, usually lower middle class, Americans are beginning to believe that social change in the nation means a lowering of their living standards or an infringement of their way of life. And, as witness ideas such as forced busing and placement quotas, they are—at least logically—right. But to now, for lack of any proper response, the national posture has been to dismiss such logic as racism.

It is past time to develop a better response; surely the nation can offer something more than the KKK.

SHORT RIBS

Things Dixon Talked About

10 YEARS AGO

A meeting of all exhibitors and concessionaires for the Petunia Festival will be held at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the Nachusa House. The chairman of the grounds and exhibit committee said a representative of each group should attend the session.

A possible addition to the Lee County Nursing Home near Eldena came under consideration Monday during the afternoon session of the Lee County Board of Supervisors regular monthly meeting.

25 YEARS AGO

To prevent a Dixon version of the tragic Effingham hospital fire which took some 60 lives, Lee County supervisors voted Monday to comply with orders from a state fire marshal on the Lee County Nursing Home.

Lee County's board of supervisors will vote this afternoon on whether to accept 10 per cent of rentals in lieu of taxes on a proposed 80-unit, million-dollar housing project for Dixon.

"Wonder what would happen if we kicked sand in his eyes?"

JOYFUL THANKS are expressed by Episcopal ministers Carter Hayward (left) and L. Peter Beebe as they hold an outdoor communion service near St. Paul's Church in Akron, Ohio, where Rev. Beebe stood trial before an ecclesiastical court for permitting a woman minister to conduct services. The Episcopal hierarchy, which has not recognized the ordination of 10 women ministers in Philadelphia last July, is expected to announce a verdict in the Beebe case within a few weeks.

New pastor will give first sermon

The Rev. Merle E. Hall, newly appointed pastor at First United Methodist Church, will preach his first sermon Sunday. Assistant pastors, Todd Yeaton and Ruth Yeaton, will share in liturgical leadership of the services.

The Rev. Mr. Hall and his wife, Lois, will be moving into the redecorated parsonage on Monday. The Halls began their ministry in Dixon as student assistants. Since that time they have served pastorates in Ohio, Ashton, and Ottawa. During the past eight years they have been at Garden United Methodist Church in Oaklawn.

Last week the Halls participated in the Northern Illinois Conference of the United Methodist Church where the Rev. Mr. Hall shared responsi-

Basilica of St. Anthony
— "Il Santo" —
(PADUA, ITALY)

Padua is a quaint old city in northeast Italy just 25 miles inland from Venice. It is steeped in medieval antiquity and its university, founded in 1222 is one of Europe's oldest. The city abounds with small streams and innumerable bridges, some of which date back to Roman times.

Although Padua has many venerable and distinguished edifices - including its ancient 12th-century cathedral - the remarkable pilgrimage basilica of St. Anthony is the city's greatest and most-honored church. Generally resembling St. Mark's in Venice, it was begun in 1232 as a suitable shrine for Padua's beloved patron saint: "Il Santo". The revered remains of St. Anthony repose beneath the altar in the chapel (half-way up the north side) especially dedicated to him.

This enormous brick and marble structure was not completed until 1307. The shrine was partially destroyed by fire in 1749 but was then restored. Unusual as it is with its seven Oriental-like domes clustered around the heavy central spire and the exquisite bell towers soaring to a spectacular height, the structure presents a harmonious and picturesque spectacle from almost any angle. It was intended that the edifice portray true Gothic lines prevalent at the time - such as the noble afore-mentioned St. Mark's. However, because the architect, Niccolò Pisano, was not given a completely free hand, the design strayed somewhat at times from the Gothic. Despite this, the church nevertheless developed into a stupendous structure rather pleasing to the eye.

The front (left) facade is only 92-ft. high but its arcade of pointed arches half-way up the front, with an arched gallery just above the arches, present a striking picture. Too, three large, arched portals dominate the lower part of the facade and are especially noted for their exceedingly fine bronze doors.

The basilica has a multitude of exquisite chapels - including the nine chapels which radiate around the apse. The sanctuary at the east (right) end was added in 1693 and its huge gilded sliding doors protect many sacred relics and a marvelous 15th-century gold casket containing the tongue of St. Anthony.

St. Anthony's is blessed with many rare and priceless art objects such as the eight bas relief panels by the master-artisan, Donatello, which enhance the High Altar. Too, a special grouping of the Madonna and Saints, and the huge altar crucifix are attributed to Donatello. A magnificent 12-ft. bronze candelabrum aside the altar was executed by Andrea Riccio and required ten years of the latter's life to complete it to his satisfaction.

White Sox win

CHICAGO (AP)—Boston Manager Darrell Johnson liked what he saw of newcomer Jim Burton despite a 9-2 drubbing his Eastern Division-leading team took at the hands of the Chicago White Sox.

What Johnson doesn't like is the way the ball bounces on artificial turf. His Red Sox committed five errors and the White Sox collected three infield hits on some balls that Johnson said "bounced around kind of weird" Thursday night.

Burton, 25, was called up from the minors after the southpaw hurled a no-hitter on Sunday. He struck out two and walked none in his major-league start, surrendering six runs on eight hits, including two home runs, during a five and one-third inning stint.

Deron Johnson connected for his sixth home run of the season with none in the second and Bob Coluccio homered in the third after Brian Downing scratched one of those infield crazies. The homers anchored the White Sox to an early lead they never surrendered and gave the durable Jim Kaat his ninth win against three losses. Burton got the loss.

"Other than the two pitches to Johnson and Coluccio, I thought the kid didn't do a bad job at all," said Johnson, who plans to use the University of Michigan graduate in the starting rotation regularly.

The White Sox added an unearned run in the fourth, four runs in the sixth and another in the eighth. They made their dozen hits count, stranding only four runners.

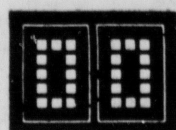

"I don't know. It just seems the ball does different things here that it doesn't do someplace else," said Johnson.

The White Sox infield consists of artificial turf except for a dirt skin and the outfield is natural turf. Only one other American League field has artificial turf, Kansas City, where the Red Sox open a three-game weekend series to night.

Nevertheless, Johnson said, unlike Chicago the Kansas City stadium is carpeted throughout the diamond and he doesn't expect the field to give his team the same problems it experienced in Chicago.

The loss shaved the Red Sox lead to one-half game over second-place New York, which was rained out Thursday night.

Burton was chased after Charles May opened the White Sox half of the sixth with a double and Ken Henderson scratched a hit off Burton's glove. Then three singles off reliever Reggie Cleveland around a throwing error by Cecil Cooper contributed to the four-run inning.

Mirus hired as assistant

Tom Mirus, 22, has been hired as the assistant golf professional at the Dixon Country Club under the Professional Golfers' association program. The Normal, Ill., native attended Murray State University, Murray, Ky., where he competed on the school's golf team.

"My first day here was May 31," Mirus commented this week. "I called Wally Ansted, (the Dixon Country Club professional) on Tuesday and came up the next day at noon to see him. He hired me about 2 p.m."

Mirus is a jack of all trades for Ansted. Wally explained, "He picks up for the members, takes control of the rack room, works and repairs the clubs, gives lessons, straightens and sells the merchandise and just about everything else."

"We would like to have him teach and give instructions during the five years he needs to work before he can become an official PGA member," Ansted continued. "It will be a 12-to 14-hour a day job regardless of rain, sleet, snow or mud."

"I really enjoy the work so far," Mirus admitted. "One reason I like it is because people come out to a golf course for relaxation and pleasure and you catch people at their happiest time. Like a doctor, for instance. He has a hectic schedule and really enjoys getting out on the course away from everything."

"I want to move up to a head job like Wally has some day," Mirus added. "Of course Wally realizes that when someone trains here, he does not expect to stay here all his life. I'm very fortunate to be working under Wally because he really knows what is going on."

Mirus studied under Johnny Revolta for five years and played in amateur tournaments during the previous summers. "I was happy to study under Revolta because of his teaching system," stated Mirus. "I haven't given that many lessons here yet and the only ones I've given have been to women so I haven't had much of a chance to see how well I work with men."

"Tom will take some of the pressure off me along with getting another man to know the profession," Ansted commented. "This is the reason I'm in golf — to make it more fun to a lot of people. I want to give something back to the sport that I have gotten out of."

"The name of a golf professional is service. It is showing different golf shafts and different equipment to people so they can play better. There are 20 to 30 different shafts with different flexes, grips, lengths and weights. It is up to us to help each golfer do everything he can do to improve his game and have fun."

Dukelets lose two

By JIM FOX
Telegraph Sports Writer

Rock Falls put back-to-back three and four-run innings in both ends of a doubleheader as the Legion team swept the Dixon Dukelets 7-4 and 8-6 at Reynolds Field Thursday night. The twinbill loss places Dixon's record at 1-4 with four straight defeats after the season opening victory over Forreston.

Chris Mullery made his first pitching appearance of the year for the Dukelets in the opener and was rocked for seven runs in the first two innings. Tim Lengfelder and Tim Fiorini singled to start the three-run first frame and were chased across the plate on a triple off the bat of centerfielder Steve Harris. Another single brought Harris home.

Rock Falls enlarged its lead with four runs in the second inning on four hits and a walk. Mullery shut the Legion squad out the rest of the way but the Dukelets were unable to catch the early seven runs.

A third inning double by Mullery scored Bob Bushman for the Dukelets initial run of the game. Tom Stewart, Dixon centerfielder hitting .500 with nine hits in 18 at bats after five games, plated a pair in the fifth with a bases-loaded single. Dale Hohm scored the fourth Dixon run in the seventh on Stewart's second hit of the game.

In the nightcap, Mike Venier hurled four innings of shutout baseball before getting tired in the fifth. Venier allowed only one hit in the first four frames. Dixon took an early lead in the first inning on singles by Randy Tucker, Mullery and Randy Hazelwood. The underclassmen put three tallies on the board in the fourth with the help of a two-base over-throw. Mike Ramage belted a run-scoring triple in the three-run fourth.

Venier showed signs of tiring in the fifth but gave up only one run on a double and two infield groundouts. Joe Brady relieved Venier in the sixth with the tying runs on base. A mix-up in left center on a deep fly ball allowed the tying runs to score and take the game from Venier.

Fiorini relieved Jim Hatten in the fourth and blanked the Dukelets in the next two frames. A pair of misjudged fly balls in left field helped Rock Falls score four deciding runs in the top of the seventh as the Legion team took an 8-4 lead. Dixon scored twice in the last of the seventh but fell short as the Dukelets record now holds at 1-4. Ramage had a key hit in the seventh, and Tucker, who went three-for-four and raised his average to .416, singled Ramage home for the last Dixon score.

The Dukelets host Rochelle in a doubleheader at Reynolds Field Saturday night with game time slated for 6 p.m. Dixon will be out to break a four game losing streak against the Rochelle Hublets.

Bob gets some help

By MIKE CUNIFF

When Bob Blackman arrived at the cornfields of Lincolnland from Dartmouth College in Hanover, N.H., he began what he hoped would be a revitalization of the Illinois football fortunes. The Illinois football program at the time Blackman appeared on the scene was certainly a challenge to the new coach.

Illinois had records of 1-9, 0-10 and 3-7 in the three seasons previous to Blackman's arrival in 1971. Taking over a losing program was nothing new to the former Dartmouth coach, who also had spent time at Pasadena City (Junior) College and the University of Denver.

Blackman was 34-6-3 at Pasadena, including a 12-0-0 season in 1951, 12-6-2 at Denver for two campaigns and 104-37-3 in 16 years at Dartmouth. His 1962, 1965 and 1970 Dartmouth teams were undefeated and untied in nine games each.

Now, the Fighting Illini will have a chance to add luster to the Blackman image after the Big Ten Conference voted as favoring a proposal to let conference teams accept bids to bowls other than the Rose Bowl.

The past 18 years, the champions of the Big Ten and Pacific-8 Conferences have battled on Jan. 1 in the annual Rose Bowl. The second-place Big Ten finisher celebrated the first day of the new year by watching runners-up from other conferences across the nation crunch each other in lesser-known Bowls such as the Orange Bowl, Cotton Bowl, Sugar Bowl, Gator Bowl, etc.

Because of Conference policy, the Big Ten sent only its champion to the Rose Bowl and no other squad could compete in another Bowl. The Southeast Conference, on the other hand, had three or four representatives in post-season contests.

Michigan, the second-place team in the Big Ten the past three seasons, may now get the chance to go to a Bowl and show the strength of the Big Ten. Illinois, if it has a good year, could be extended an invitation—the first such post-season honor since the 1963 squad captured the Rose Bowl with a 17-7 verdict over Washington.

Each Big Ten team will share in the revenue of each post-season game which will help the bottom teams who do not draw like Ohio State and Michigan. The more Bowl bids, the more money to be divided.

Another positive note for the Big Ten is the added chance for teams to participate in a Bowl competition. Other conferences have been able to sway recruits with the statement concerning only one team in the Big Ten was eligible for a Bowl appearance.

What will happen now if the Pac-8 agrees to the switch? Two, possibly three Big Ten football teams will probably get invitations to post-season action. The Southeast schools and other conferences, which have held a stranglehold on Bowl appearances will be forced to compete with the Big Ten.

Some lesser deserving schools will be bumped from the Bowls. Certainly, some of the teams with .500 records last season will be dropped. Overall, the competition should be fiercer as the quality of the Big Ten is infused into the Bowl picture.

About the worst thing that could happen is an expansion of Bowl games just to accommodate all the teams that want to play. It seems like there are too many Bowl games now and who could possibly want more?

So far in the Al Morrison season (through June 12) a total of 56 games have been played in the Pee Wee, Future, Bronco and Pony Leagues and only two results have not been brought into The Telegraph office.

Broken down, Pee Wee results are four for four, Future 23 of 24, Bronco 17 of 18, and Pony 10 of 10. Maybe the next time one of the baseball players sees his name in the newspaper, he could take the time to thank the manager or coach who turns in the results.

A second to give a word of praise to Rich Sedowski who turns in the scores for the Dixon Park District. All managers could take a minute to drop him a note for the coverage. Trying to coordinate all the teams and getting the results can result in many migraine headaches. Let's face the facts—if the managers had to turn in the results, I doubt if half the scores would find their way to the sports desk.

Biggest surprises so far in the baseball season have to be the Chicago Cubs in the National League East, San Diego in the National League West, Baltimore Orioles in the American League East, and Chicago White Sox in the American League West.

The Cubs, despite running into a buzzsaw and dropping four in a row to Cincinnati, have a plus-.500 record with the campaign one-third completed. Who would have thought it could happen, especially after the Cubs traded away Billy Williams during the winter for an unknown second baseman and two fringe-quality pitchers?

San Diego has been getting great pitching from lefty Randy Jones, who lost 22 games last season as the Padres are just a shade under .500. Houston is also a surprise, losing 40 games already, and Astros manager Preston Gomez can feel the noose tightening.

The answers are no, yes, maybe and repeat the question.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You tend to treat outsiders with more consideration today than those of your own family. Bear in mind they have feelings too.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Let bygones be bygones. Nursing a senseless grudge could crowd some of the sunshine out of your life today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If sharing the evening with friends, be sure you willingly share the tab, even though you drank beer and others drank champagne.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You may be so interested in discussing business matters that you'll alienate or bore others in the group.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Avoid debating sensitive subjects this evening with one whose views oppose yours. Hard feelings will result if you do.

Reds dominate

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bench is among four Cincinnati Reds dominating the early balloting for the National League All-Star team, released Friday by Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn's office.

Bench, who has been on the NL team the last seven years and started the last six, has a huge lead for the catching spot — 327,894 votes to 60,713 for runner-up Manny Sanguillen of Pittsburgh.

The other Reds topping early returns are Joe Morgan at second base, Dave Concepcion at shortstop and Pete Rose in the outfield.

Morgan has drawn 249,174 votes thus far, nearly five times as many as Pittsburgh's Rennie Stennett, presently second in the tally with 55,778.

Concepcion, seeking his first starting role, has attracted 182,836 votes, followed by Larry Bowa of Philadelphia with 136,121. Rose has 215,612 in the outfielder's race, followed close behind by the Mets' Rusty Staub with 151,322 and Del Unser with 147,583. Neither Staub nor Unser have started previously, though Staub was a reserve five consecutive times (1967-71) and played in three games.

Base-stealing ace Lou Brock of St. Louis is also an outfield contender with 108,086 votes, as is Los Angeles' Jimmy Wynn with 98,347.

Two Los Angeles Dodgers have an early advantage in the infield. The Dodgers leaders are first baseman Steve Garvey, a write-in selection in 1974 who ended up most valuable player in the midseason classic, with 191,197 ballots and third baseman Ron Cey with 203,815.

New York's Mike Phillips has drawn the most votes of any write-in candidate this year, polling 28,489 to place him No. 5 among shortstops.

Miss Hodges weds Mr. Gower

Miss Patricia A. Hodges, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Hodges, Rt. 1, Dixon, became the bride of William L. Gower, son of the Virgil Gowers, 850 N. Galena Ave., at a recent wedding ceremony held at the First Christian Church Disciples of Christ.

The wedding was performed by the Rev. Tom Shepard, pastor of the church, and the Rev. Donald Ahles, pastor of St. Anne's Catholic Church. Mrs. Mildred Bruce, Dixon, served as the organist, and soloist was Del Stauffer, Lake Bluff, brother-in-law of the bridegroom.

Altar arrangements of Killian daisies were flanked by garland-trimmed candelabra. The church pews were decorated with satin bows.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a floor-length gown of white organza with appliques of daisies and roses. The dress was styled with a sheer bodice and sleeves with daisy applique cuffs and a chapel floor-length train. The bride's veil, made by her sister-in-law, Mrs. George Hodges, Normal, was a Juliet cap trimmed with daisy medallions and featured a three-tiered circular veiling. As the bride was escorted down the aisle, she carried a bouquet of stephanotis with carnations and Jack Frost roses.

Mrs. Robert Stouffer, Dixon, served as her sister's matron of honor. Her floor-length, powder blue gown was made of silky satin. The gown featured a stand-up collar and long sleeves with cuffs and covered buttons. The matron of honor carried a cascade of variegated daisies.

Miss Peggy Jones and Miss Mary Hodges, sister of the bride, Dixon, served as bridesmaids and wore gowns styled like the matron of honor's gown and carried cascade bouquets of variegated daisies. All headpieces for the attendants were head bows of silky satin and circular netting made by the bride's sister-in-law, Mrs. George Hodges, Normal.

The bride's niece, Miss Amy Stouffer, was the flower girl. Her floor-length, powder blue gown was made of silky satin with white lace trim and puffed short sleeves.

Tom Gower, Dixon, served as his brother's best man and serving as groomsmen were William Nealy, Port Washington, Wis., and John Sagmoe, Dixon. Toby Hodges, Dixon, and George Hodges, Normal, both brothers of the bride, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception hosted by Mr. and Mrs. Ed Struhs, Dixon, was held at the Nachusa House Trail Room. The four-tiered cake centered with variegated colors of daisies and topped with a bride and groom was served by the bride's sister-in-laws, Mrs. Toby Hodges, Dixon, and Mrs. George Hodges, Normal. Daisies also circled the base of the cake with candelabra decorating each side of the cake and holding blue candles. Guests were registered by the bride's niece, Miss Shelly Stouffer, Dixon. Punch was served by Mrs. David Brown, Delevan, Wis., and Mrs. Pat Harmon, Dixon, coffee was poured by Mrs. Tim Bivins, Dixon.

The couple took their wedding trip to Pennsylvania and presently reside in rural Dixon at Lost Nation.

Mrs. Gower is a graduate of Dixon High School and is employed by Dixon Home Savings and Loan.

Mr. Gower, a graduate of Dixon High School, has attended Western Illinois University and is a special agent for the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company. He is also a member of the Elks and Life Underwriter's.

Miscellaneous bridal showers were given for the new Mrs. Gower by Mrs. Jerry Reed, Mrs. David Brown and Mrs. Louis Plock, Mrs. Kenneth Maxon and Mrs. Al Tiekens and Mrs. Tim Bivins, Mrs. Robert Stouffer and Miss Mary Hodges and Mrs. Toby Hodges, Mrs. William Nealy and Mrs. Jay Mackey, Mrs. Tom Gower and Mrs. Del Stauffer, and Miss Peggy Jones and Mrs. Dennis Bellows.

Dear Ann by Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Last night I almost died of shock. I was cleaning out the storeroom and came across a box of letters. It seems my husband has a heavy correspondence going with Lonely-Hearts Club Members and teen-age Pen Pals! He has been responding also to ads placed by homosexuals and couples interested in "Swinging."

Not only did I find letters he has received but the carbon copies of letters he has written. Pictures were attached to some of the letters and the writers thanked him for his picture. One woman said, "You are very handsome." (I wonder whose picture he sent.) I am very shaken up by this and don't know what to do. My husband is 55 years old. He has never cheated on me that I know of. We've been married 33 years and have a fine family. What does this mean? Shall I confront him with evidence? Please advise. I am — Worried Sick

Dear W.S.: By all means confront him with the evidence. Since he's always been well-behaved I suspect he is having some little flights into fantasy. Suggest counseling — and go with him to find out why he needs this sort of thing.

Dear Ann Landers: Last Saturday my seven-year-old daughter had a play-date with a little friend. Lisa was expecting Maureen for lunch and they were to spend the day together. That very morning Maureen's mother phoned to say her child would rather stay home and watch Sesame Street. I knew Lisa would be disappointed and suggested they watch Sesame Street at our house. Maureen's mother said her child decided she just didn't want to come over and added, "I'm not going to force her."

Lisa was very unhappy and I was burned up. I believe when a child makes a date it should be kept — unless the youngster becomes ill. Some mothers don't agree with me. They feel a child should be free to change his mind and make his own decisions regarding friends. What do YOU think? — Fuming In

Florida
Dear Fuming: Once a child makes a date, it is a commitment. A last-minute change in mood doesn't qualify as a legitimate reason to disappoint a friend.

Lisa's mother should have insisted that her child go — with the understanding that if she didn't want to accept future invitations she didn't have to, but once having said "yes" she was obligated.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I can no longer communicate on this subject. Too many feelings get in the way. Here's the problem.

Bill and Mr. X have been friends since boyhood. In the last few years the friend has become a wheel in illegal drug traffic. I've been trying to get Bill to stop seeing him. In fact, I'm ill at ease with him and his wife and no longer want to entertain them in our home.

Bill insists that what Mr. X does is no concern of his and he refuses to drop them. This bone of contention is making me ill. What can I do to get Bill to see things my way? Your advice is desperately needed. — H.U.R.T.

Dear H.: Bill will undoubtedly continue to see his boyhood chum no matter what I say, but this I can tell you. If Mr. Dope Dealer is nailed while in the presence of your husband, his name will be in the papers and the mud will stick for a long time to come.

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to clean old clay flower pots that have been in my basement for a long time. Plants are now so popular and I want to use some of the clay pots that florists' plants came in.—JUNE.

DEAR JUNE—A couple of nursery people I talked with said all they could suggest would be to soak the pots in warm sudsy water and then remove any remaining residue with a stiff bristle or wire brush.—POLLY.

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve is with the way dress manufacturers cut off the inner fold of the hem of a dress where it is folded at an opening. I know they do this to eliminate a bulky look but many who are tall find it necessary to lower the hems. This cannot be done when the material has been cut out entirely. This missing square of fabric also is important to others who do not go along with those too-short skirts. I hope manufacturers see this. If some reader has found a way to get around it I hope she will pass along her discovery.—AGNES.

DEAR POLLY—I have a suggestion for Mrs. W. Y. who has a discoloration on her stove around the oven door that does not close tightly. I find that new all-purpose cleaner is magic and does such a good job for this that I do not want to ever be without it. I find it also keeps the chrome looking very nice. Be sure to follow the easy directions on the little plastic container it comes in. It also has its own cleaning pad.—JESSIE.

DEAR POLLY—I bake a lot and had trouble when I baked in a tube pan. I put it upside down on top of a soda bottle and it would slide to one side. Now I take the cake out of the oven and clamp snap clothespins to the pan and then turn pan and cake over and let stand on the pins. This way it is always straight and the cake cools more quickly. The pins allow it to stand free so the air circulates under and around it. Hope this helps other cake bakers. Happy Baking!—FLORENCE.

DEAR POLLY—To avoid bathtub ring I squirt a little dishwashing liquid into the water running in the tub. This makes lots of bubbles for the kids and is not as expensive as bubble bath liquids.

I never throw away stale bread but break it up to use in meat loaf as a meat stretcher. To avoid losing baby's shoe laces in the wash I pin (use rustproof pins) them to a towel. They are never left behind in the washer or dryer.

My Pet Pleaser is a column called Polly's Pointers.—MON- EY SAVER.

DEAR POLLY—When following a recipe in a cookbook where one or more recipes appear on the same page, I find it much easier to follow the one in use by cutting a square in a sheet of paper (color preferred) and placing it over the page. The recipe being followed is the only thing that shows. This way one does not accidentally read part of another recipe and end up with a disaster.—JULIA. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Try a change from nail polish this summer. Instead of applying polish, buff your nails for a pretty shine. You'll need a kit with a cream or powder and a chamois buffer.

Couple exchanges vows

Miss Susan Elaine Hallquist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell G. Hallquist, Dixon, and William J. Horine, son of the William Horines, Northbrook, exchanged marriage vows recently in St. Paul Lutheran Church, Dixon.

The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Norman A. Erikson, Lutheran campus pastor at Northern Illinois University. The organist and vocalist for the wedding was the Rev. Robert G. Wurtz, pastor of St. Paul Lutheran Church.

The altar was decorated with white mums and pompons, while the aisle and pews were decorated with white satin pew bows.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a modern floor-length gown of imported silk organza trimmed with dainty Venice lace touched with pearls. The gown was styled with a high fitted neckline, bishop sleeves, fitted bodice, circular silhouette skirt and a built-in chapel sweep train. The face-framing bonnet of matching Venice lace enhanced with pearls held a double-tiered veil of imported illusion.

As the bride was escorted to the altar she carried a colonial bouquet of white Sweetheart roses, stephanotis and baby's breath with white ribbon streamers.

Mrs. Lewis Huntley, Newark, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor in a sky-blue floor-length gown of flocked voile over taffeta. The gown was trimmed with a self ruffle on the baby doll pouf sleeves and along the hemline of the A-line skirt. A garland headpiece of blue and white Elegance carnations and baby's breath was worn by the matron of honor. She also carried a colonial bouquet of blue Elegance carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath with light blue ribbon streamers.

Miss Patricia Buck, Algonquin; Miss Linda Miller, Dixon, and Miss Catherine Horine, Chicago, sister of the bridegroom, served as bridesmaids. Their gowns, headpieces and bouquets were similar to those of the matron of honor. All of the attendants wore carved ivory rose necklaces, gifts from the bride.

Serving his brother as best man was James Horine, Northbrook. Groomsmen for the wedding ceremony were Daniel Hallquist, Dixon, brother of the bride; Stephen Horine, brother of the bridegroom, Carbondale, and Daniel Jordan, Sycamore. Lewis Huntley, Newark, brother-in-law of the bride, and John McCarthy, Oswego, N.Y., served as ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald McWethy, uncle and aunt of the bride, hosted a luncheon reception at Emerald Hill Country Club following the ceremony. The bride's table was highlighted with a centerpiece of blue and white pompons and baby's breath, while the other tables held blue carnations and greens in bud vases. The four-tiered wedding cake, surrounded at the base with leather-leaf fern and baby's breath, was served by Mrs. Daniel Holcomb, Lakeview, Colo.; Mrs. Craig Sheri-dan, Rockford, and Miss Kathy Keppel, Chicago. Preceding the luncheon, Mrs. Monty Cotter, Dixon, served punch from a fountain. The guests were registered by Miss Peggy Murray, Downers Grove, while Miss Molly Murray was in charge at the gift table.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the bridegroom's parents at the Brown Shingle.

The new Mrs. Horine is a graduate of Dixon High School and plans to graduate in December from Northern Illinois University, where she is a member of the Kappa Delta Pi and Pi Lambda Theta sororities.

Mr. Horine is a graduate of Homewood-Flossmoor High School and will graduate in August from Northern Illinois. He later plans to attend graduate school at the University of Colorado, Boulder, Colo.

The bridal couple will make their home in Dekalb after returning from a wedding trip to Lake Geneva and Madeline Island, Wis.

Prior to the wedding, a kitchen shower was given for the bride by Mrs. Donald McWethy, Mrs. August Hallquist and Mrs. Monty Cotter. A miscellaneous shower was given by Mrs. Wilbur Ransom and Mrs. Richard Hughes.

the king remarking, "No better time and place for it."

He led back a club to his partner's ace. Another spade was led. South ruffed with the ace, drew trumps and claimed the balance.

West had nothing to gain by overruffing that spade. Suppose he just discarded. Later on that king of trumps would score over South's jack or 10. West would put East in with a club. A third spade would be led and there would be no way to keep West's eight of trumps from winning the setting trick.

Incidentally, this type of play is not too unusual. You will be surprised at the number of extra trump tricks you will gather in if you refuse to overruff automatically.

Some bankers fail to do well at bridge because they think that a trick taken early gains interest. Actually, there are plenty of occasions when refusing to take a trick early will lead to a nice capital gain.

East won the first trick with the jack of spades over dummy's 10 and led back the king. South ruffed with the queen of trumps and West plunked on

Deadline for entering Petunia parade extended

"American Holidays in Review" has been chosen as the theme for the 1975 Petunia Festival Parade, scheduled for July 6 at 2 p.m.

Registered entries will be limited to 125, and deadline for entry has been extended to June 18. No entry fee is required, however, only registered units will be judged for parade trophies.

Bill Ost, parade chairman, stated, "The Petunia Festival Parade is one of the outstanding highlights of our entire program. Over the years we have continuously discouraged the use of the festival parade as a source of commercial advertising, and the large number of floats, decorated vehicles and marching bands indicates we have been fairly successful. This year's theme offers many choices, and we are hopeful all business, industry, churches, clubs and organizations will enter the 1975 competition." Trophies will be awarded under the following classifications:

Petunia President trophies

For best use of Petunia Festival theme, commercial construction, and best use of Petunia Festival theme, original construction.

Petunia City Mayor trophies for best entry by civic organization, and best entry by religious organization.

Chamber of Commerce trophies for best commercial business entry, and best industrial business entry.

Marching Unit trophies for best non-professional marching unit or band, and best non-professional color guard.

Rock River Valley trophy for best out-of-town entry.

Pam Zimmer trophy for best individual horse or group horse entry.

1975 Petunia special award for best animated entry.

Petunia Festival Queen's trophy for best individual or unit effort.

Entry forms may be obtained by contacting Petunia Festival headquarters, located in the Chamber of Commerce building. Catalogues for float materials are available on a loan basis.

Chet Kobel, Byron, has been re-elected president of the Mental Health Association of Ogle County by its 36-member citizen board of directors.

Also renamed are Don Parish, Stillman Valley, first vice president; Dr. Lloyd R. Wood, Oregon, second vice president, and Mrs. Marie B. Larson, Rochelle, executive secretary-treasurer.

At its June meeting Kobel recounted many of the Association activities of the past year. They include an expenditure of $9,725 for educational booklets and materials which were distributed throughout Ogle County to help its people prevent and control mental illness. As a result of this effort 859 Ogle County people (adults and children) sought low cost therapy at the Mississippi Mental Health Center. Kobel revealed that 453 Ogle people are now receiving help there.

In addition the Association allotted more than $1,000 in scholarships to three students who are studying to become social workers. Currently it is funding the tuition for four high school students to enable them to attend a Drug Abuse Institute near Bloomington.

Kobel also reminded the directors that the need for help to emotionally disturbed people continues, since the statistics show that one of every 10 persons in this county has some form of emotional disturbance needing psychiatric treatment. The need also includes school-age children, among whom the problem is equally severe.

To continue this educational effort the Association is currently conducting its annual membership campaign toward a financial goal of $10,000. The Association is supported with funds from the Mt. Morris United Fund, the Rochelle Community Chest, Ogle County Community Mental Health Board, and from the other Ogle County communities with individual memberships obtained by mail.

The membership campaign is being directed by the Association's community chairmen who are: Byron, Robert Boger; Forreston, Earl Ratmeyer; Grand Detour, Mrs. Claudia Fruin; Leaf River, Mrs. Nancy Croft; Oregon, Mrs. Carol Blumeyer; Mt. Morris, Raymond Bates; Polo, Randy Hayes; Rochelle, Miss Katherine Parks; LaFayette-Taylor Township, Mrs. Margaret Reed; Stillman Valley, Mrs. Ada Jewitt.

Bill to free GI education funds signed by President

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Ford has signed a $15-billion supplemental money bill, freeing delayed GI education checks for 219,279 veterans and $50 bonus checks for 34 million persons on the Social Security and railroad retirement rolls, a White House spokesman said today.

The checks had been delayed for up to two weeks by a Senate-House fight over how much to spend for rehabilitating railway roadbeds and other rail facilities.

On Wednesday, the Senate dropped a $700-million item and capitulated to the House, which voted for only a $5-million plan for rail work.

The measure is the final catch-all supplemental appropriations bill for fiscal year 1975, which ends June 30. It contains funds for dozen of federal agencies.

In addition to freeing the veterans' education checks and the $50 payment for Social Security and railroad retirement recipients provided in the tax-cut law enacted earlier this year, Ford's signature will free extra funds for the food stamp program.

Veterans Administrator Richard L. Roubush said Treasury Department officials have assured the VA they would do everything possible to process $62.8 million in veterans' checks for June and place them in the mail as soon as possible.

Bill allowing dumping of warm water to Walker

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Legislation sought by a power company but opposed by state environmental officials has been approved by the Illinois General Assembly and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker.

The House approved Thursday a measure to allow steam generating power facilities to dump warm water into artificial lakes, ponds and reservoirs without regard to thermal pollution standards.

Environmental officials said such dumping might jeopardize state water quality programs.

The vote was 121 to 36 in the House. The bill earlier passed the Senate.

The House met late into the evening while the Senate held a brief floor session. Committees of both houses were working to meet a midnight deadline tonight for consideration of bills other than appropriations and emergency matters which already have been approved in the opposite chamber.

Among the major committee actions were:

—The House Executive Committee's approval of a reapportionment plan for Illinois congressional districts along the lines proposed by supporters of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley.

—The Senate Executive Committee approved a bill that, among other things, would require a woman to have permission of her husband before obtaining an abortion. The measure already passed the House.

—The Senate Education Committee sent to the floor a bill that would provide cash grants to parents of students in parochial and other nonpublic schools. The vote on the bill, which has passed the House. The bill had already passed the House and was approved in committee by one vote.

—On a 7-5 vote, the Senate Elections Committee sent to the floor a controversial measure that would require that anyone voting in a primary election must be a registered member of a political party for at least 30 days. The bill, which was rewritten in the committee, had earlier received House approval.

Rep. Gerald Bradley, D-Bloomington, sponsor of the water regulation bill, said its enactment would enable the Illinois Power Co. to build a generating plant at Clinton.

Other supporters said the operation of the plant would provide 1,200 jobs, would not endanger the environment and would allow the company to provide energy in central Illinois more cheaply than if it were forced to comply with the current water quality standards.

During committee deliberations on the measure, however, Jeff Diver of the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency said the bill was not the best way to deal with the situation.

A spokesman for the U.S. EPA told committee members passage of the bill could jeopardize the state's authority to administer its own clean-water program.

Rep. Gilbert Deavers, R-Normal, said the company attempted but failed to get a variance from pollution standards from state officials even though it assured them the plant would meet thermal emission standards for 10 months of each year.

"We found no group more arrogant than the EPA," he said. Bradley and Deavers said the legislation would not affect state standards on discharges from the man-made bodies of water into natural streams and rivers.

The House also passed legislation to stiffen safeguards against unauthorized electronic eavesdropping.

The legislation, which was returned to the Senate for approval of amendments, would require persons who discover eavesdropping device in operation to inform the local state's attorney, who would then inform the person who was being spied upon.

The House, acting on a no-fault automobile insurance bill, voted to strip the measure of prohibitions against filing suits to recover damages.

The bill, which can be amended further, would have prohibited civil suits for damages of less than $1,000, a position which the insurance industry supports.

The Senate currently is considering a no-fault bill which includes the $1,000 prohibition on suits.

The reapportionment bill was approved by a party-line vote in the House Executive Committee. Fifteen Democrats voted "yes" and 11 Republicans voted "no."

However, an amendment added by a party-line vote in the House Executive Committee would force the bill back to the Senate if the House approves the measure.

Gov. Daniel Walker, a Democrat, and Republicans in both chambers have contended there is no pressing need to redraw the state's congressional boundaries.

And Reps. Paul Simon, a Democrat from Southern Illinois, and John Anderson, a Republican from Rockford, both testified against the remap before the committee on Thursday.

But Senate President Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, who introduced the reapportionment plan and steered it through the Senate, said the legislature must redraw the boundaries.

He said the General Assembly should not stand by and allow the current district boundaries set by a federal court panel in 1971 to stand.

He said he felt Democrats' chances for election would be improved if the new map were adopted, but he added that the plan "was not proffered to destroy the Republican party."

The remap revision approved by the committee primarily affected liberal Rep. Abner Mikva of the 10th District. Mikva contends the mayor is out to destroy his career in the House because of his independence from Daley.

Conley was eastbound when she missed a curve and skidded 315 feet into a creek. Her car was extensively damaged.

Reports break-in

Bob Swaney of Rock River Builders, 497 Martin St., discovered a burglary to his office Thursday.

Entry was gained forcibly through a broken window. A cabinet and a patio door were vandalized and a roll of sand paper was taken.

The total loss was estimated at over $300.

Cure for state money woes not likely

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—The financial stability of state government in Illinois appears to be resting on two shaky legs. Gov. Daniel Walker says he is depending primarily on cuts in spending for welfare and school aid to halt a flood of red ink in the next fiscal year.

But it is unlikely that anyone will be able to curb the soaring cost of welfare, state economists say.

And it appears that the General Assembly, at least, is unwilling to trim the costly, but politically popular program of state aid to schools and universities.

Without cuts in these programs—two of the most expensive in state government—there is agreement on the part of legislators, economists and others that it will be next to impossible to reduce the budget by the $300 million needed to avert a tax increase.

In an interview Thursday, Welfare Director James L. Trainor said the state's welfare caseload was higher than ever and still growing.

But he said the governor was determined not to cut payments to welfare recipients in order to balance the budget.

The only way to cut the welfare budget by the 6 per cent requested by the governor, Trainor said, was to trim administrative costs and weed ineligible and overpaid recipients from the rolls.

He acknowledged that reducing administrative costs would be difficult if the welfare caseload continued to climb and that earlier efforts to trim the caseload had failed.

"I'll just have to do the best I can with what I've got to work with," Trainor said.

However, members of the Legislative Advisory Committee on Public Aid, who were more accurate than Walker in predicting this year's welfare costs, have this gloomy prediction for 1976: welfare spending will soar at least $100 million above the level requested by the governor. This would be a 6 per cent increase—not a decrease.

A spending increase on welfare would make slashing the education budget all the more important for financial stability.

Illinois Focus

But within hours of Walker's "fiscal crisis" message to the General Assembly Wednesday night, legislative leaders were expressing reservations about trimming the school budget.

"I'm not so sure we want our school children to bear 50 per cent of the cost of the projected deficit," said Rep. Ted Lechowicz, D-Chicago, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

State School Supt. Joseph M. Cronin told the Board of Education in Chicago on Thursday that a 6 per cent cut in the budget for elementary and secondary schools would force local districts to borrow money or seek a tax increase.

Pressure from school administrators, teachers and parents back in their home districts is likely to give legislators second thoughts about tampering with the established formula for distributing state aid.

Walker tried once before, in 1974, to trim his budget by reducing state aid through a reduction veto in an appropriations measure. But in a remarkable display of unity, the General Assembly overrode the veto without a dissenting vote and forced Walker to accept the full amount.

A number of legislators have suggested that a similar course of events is likely this year. If the General Assembly refuses to cut the education budget, Walker is likely to do it with his amendatory veto powers.

That could stall resolution of the state's fiscal affairs until this fall, when the General Assembly has a session scheduled to consider vetoes by the governor.

By then, the course of the nation's economy may be easier to chart. And an economic upswing in the coming months could make budget trimming unnecessary.

But if today's gloomy forecasts prove true, Walker and the General Assembly may be forced to seek more sturdy props—like emergency borrowing or a tax increase—to keep the shaky budget from collapsing.

Federal funds help State road program for 1976 bared

By SKIP WOLLENBERG
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Bankrolled by recently enacted legislation making it easier for states to get federal highway money, the Illinois Department of Transportation has announced a $791-million road construction and improvement program for fiscal 1976.

The program is $150.4 million higher than the 1975 program, and DOT officials said Thursday this was due largely to President Ford's release of impounded highway funds. Ford also signed legislation which allows the state more flexibility in using road money and permits states to defer until January 1977 paying the state's share of highway costs.

The main features of the fiscal 1976 program as outlined by Transportation Secretary Langhorne Bond include plans to:

- Renovate 25 miles of pavement on the Stevenson Expressway in the Chicago area.
- Construct nearly 40 miles on Interstate 55 at various intervals between Lincoln and Pontiac.
- Perform more work on the Peoria By-Pass.
- Complete work on Interstate 72 between Champaign and Springfield.

- Complete the Decatur and Quincy By-Passes.
- Construct 12 miles of the Central Illinois Expressway between Jacksonville and Winchester.
- Build eight bridges on the Galesburg to Monmouth freeway.
- Complete a toll-road extension to Rock Island.
- Construct 18 miles of freeway between Interstate 80 and Rockford.

Bond said his road program will require an authorization from the legislature to issue an extra $200 million in bonds.

If the General Assembly approves the borrowing request, Bond said, Illinois will get some $332 million in federal road money which has been impounded since the Johnson administration.

He said if the legislature rejects the request, some $225 million of this impounded money will be lost to the state.

There will be a substantial decrease in the amount the state plans to spend on projects which involve only state money in 1976, Bond said.

This is because the state road fund is expected to be 58 per cent smaller in fiscal 1976 than in fiscal 1975, he said.

"This decrease results from a substantial reduction in the revenues collected from the various tax sources which by law go into the road fund. The two primary sources of road fund income are the 7.5 cent per gallon tax on gasoline and state motor vehicle registration fees—both of which are down due to the energy crisis and the general downturn in the economy," Bond said.

The projected increase in federal assistance will reduce the impact of the reductions in the total highway program, Bond said, but the state-only program to repair streets will be cut from $85.5 million in 1975 to $30 million in 1976.

State road fund expenditures were $135.8 million in 1975, but are expected to drop to $56.6 in fiscal 1976, Bond said.

The road program includes plans to build or improve some 137 miles of interstate and four-lane supplemental freeways at a cost of $386.6 million, up $83 million from 1975.

Bond once again pledged to move ahead as rapidly as possible with the supplemental freeway program—a plan developed by former Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie to link Illinois' major cities with 1,950 miles of four-lane roads.

But he said that federal red tape often caused an eight-year wait between planning projects and completing them. And he said inflation had boosted the final expected cost of the road system from $4.2 billion in 1967 to nearly $8 billion under current projections.

$1.5 million state contract to Fosco

The second highest bid letting in history of the Illinois Department of Transportation Tuesday included two projects in the Lee-Bureau County area and three awards to Fosco Fabricators, Inc., of Dixon, for more than $1.5 million.

J. F. Edwards Construction Co., Geneseo, was awarded a contract for $67,908 to furnish and install highway lighting system at the interchange of Int. 80 and Ill. 26, north of Princeton.

In Lee County, Lawrence and Sons Construction Co., Rock Falls, got a contract for $102,911 for graded earth trench for four miles on the Angling Road, from one mile south of Paw Paw and southeasterly.

The largest contract awarded Fosco Fabricators was for $1,357,000 for traffic sign modernization of Int. 270 from the Mississippi River, easterly to the interchange with Ints. 55 and 70.

The company also received a contract for $55,000 for interchange exit numbering and mileposts on Int. 70 from the Mississippi River to St. Clair Avenue and from U.S. 40 to the Bond County Line.

The third Fosco contract is for $128,000 for maintenance of signs on various freeways in the state.

Of the permits issued, 12 were for new fences; 10 for new roofs; five for siding; four each for driveway, storage sheds, and to remodel; three for garages, and repair; two each for new homes, addition, and patios; and one each for an apartment, office building, plumbing, wiring, water heater, fireplace, swimming pool, sign and one for demolition.

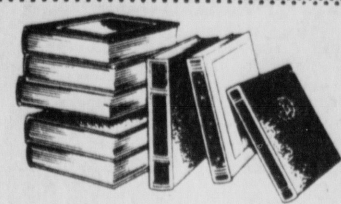

Final vote on bill near

A first attempt to allow counties to clean up the thousands of miles of clogged streams in Illinois is now at the passage stage in the Illinois Senate. This is the last hurdle for a bill introduced by Representative Harlan Rigney, R-Freepoint. If passed, a county with referendum approval would be allowed to levy five cents on each hundred dollars of assessed valuation for this work.

The only activity in this field now is provided by the State Division of Waterways, and consists of a six man department and four pieces of equipment. "I've observed their work," Rigney stated, "and although they are doing a fine job, they can never hope to reach more than a small fraction of the affected areas."

Rigney's bill further provides that county highway equipment, with the approval of the county superintendent, can be used in such an operation—another feature of the bill would allow wood dredged from these streams to be burned at the site.

ATTENTION DEALERS & COLLECTORS

Midwest's largest antique mail order dealer buying complete estates or antique collections for CASH. D. Shiaras' Question and Answer Period On Antiques has been read weekly by millions of readers around the world for over a decade. D. Shiaras, Route 3, Box 66, Grand Detour, Illinois 61021. Phone 652-4278.

QUESTION & ANSWER PERIOD

QUESTION: Mr. Shiaras, dear auntie passed away recently leaving Sis and I her set of Touraine flawn blue. I decided on the 12 cups and Sis chose 12 dinners for her plate rail, etc. My cups are marked Semi-Porcelain Rd. No. 329815 Henry Alcock. Could you date this set?
ANSWER: Yes. First let me commend you for dividing the set fair and square. Haarrumph! The registry number falling under 360,000 indicates your set to be manufactured between 1883-1900. Numbers above 360,000 indicate date of manufacture to be in the 1900's. Josiah Wedgwood II invented the flawn blue method in the 1820's. The flowing of the color hid many imperfections. The darker blues date early in the 19th century while the lighter examples date closer to the 20th century. Touraine flawn blue has outstripped the bluest blue chip stock advancing 600 pct. in value in eight short years.

Berry's World

"Good heavens! They're stark naked! What's going to happen to the bathing suit industry?"

The Doctor says:

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am writing you to tell you of my experience and maybe help others. I have been a coffee drinker and have taken two aspirins every night for the last three or four years for arthritis. I'm 60 years old, and I hadn't felt good for a long time. I've been to my doctor, but he could never find anything wrong, so I thought I was just getting old. I would go to bed at 9:30 or 10 o'clock and wake up about 2 o'clock, and my head would throb, and I'd have wild dreams. I couldn't go back to sleep or relax. Then I read in your column that aspirin and coffee could be harmful and I quit both. Now I feel like a new man. I sleep well. My head does not throb, and I can relax. I know coffee and aspirin were poisoning me. There must be other people like me so maybe you could tell them my story.

DEAR READER — Caffeine in coffee, tea and cola drinks, and in cocoa is a stimulant to the nervous system. This is useful for some people, but in our over stressed society often it is not. Too much caffeine can lead to an anxiety-like response. This can lead to sleeplessness and a sense of ill-ease.

Often a person doesn't know that he is as tense as he is until the situation calms down. I am always reminded of the many younger men who have survived heart attacks and changed their living habits. Commonly they noted they felt so much better that they were glad they had this experience early in life. Aspirin does not have the same effect as caffeine on the nervous system, although it has its good points and bad points. Aspirin and caffeine are often the basic ingredients in some medicines to relieve headache, fever and muscular aches. APCs used for headaches and colds are really just aspirin, phenacetin and caffeine. The combination of aspirin and caffeine then may be useful in some people as a temporary relief of minor medical problems, but continued use of significant amounts can lead to undesirable reactions in some people. Apparently you were one of these individual susceptibility to caffeine. Since caffeine stimulates the formation of acid digestive juice in the stomach and aspirin tends to erode the stomach lining and may cause bleeding, the combination should be particularly avoided in patients with any form of ulcer or acid indigestion history. To avoid the dangers of aspirin on the stomach lining, it is better to have less acid stomach contents, just the opposite of the effects of the combined caffeine aspirin medicine. Usually it is better to neutralize stomach acid when taking aspirin by taking it after a meal or along with a glass of milk or a snack. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE D-683: Luke D., aged 20, is a journalism student. "Dr. Crane," he said, "we use your psychology textbook in one of our courses."

"And I notice that you practice what you preach regarding the use of quote marks, short paragraphs, parentheses, etc. But what puzzles me is why printers still ignore your stress on the greater eye-appeal of Arabic numbers."

"In your textbook, you explain why it gains more readers if printed copy employs such figures as '9 and 10' instead of the usual printer's customary 'nine and 10.'"

"Why don't printers follow your experiment with the quick flash instrument (tachistoscope) where you proved the vast superiority of Arabic numbers?"

Custom Inertia

While director of the Psychology Lab at Northwestern University, I tested various layouts of printed copy, for I wished to gain the maximum readership for this advisory column.

And it has ALWAYS rated first place among women on newspaper surveys, not just because of my stress on "boudoir cheesecake" or practical gimmicks for rearing children.

But partly because of its greater eye-appeal on the printed page!

You don't even need the tachistoscope to realize these facts, for tear out this column and hold it against other columns in this very newspaper.

Note the usual "..." she said, "... (opening line)." Quote marks are the most interesting of all print symbols.

Why? Because they denote dialogue!

And dialogue means at least two people are present. Which means what?

That all possible dramatic situations may occur, from rape and assault, kidnapping, love, self-sacrifice, etc.

Our human "gossip" craving thus makes us want to find out which!

So we read onward till we discover what is happening.

Luke is correct, too, in saying that my research showed that Arabic numbers catch the eye on a split-second exposure of a printed page.

Why? Because Arabic numbers are alien print symbols!

They stand out against the sameness of the usual Latin letters of our alphabet.

Alas, custom has decreed that printers write out numerals, if they are under 2-place (below 10).

So the printer usually changes my copy from "9 and 10" to "nine and 10," thus reducing some of its eye-appeal.

Occasional use of parentheses (like this), also attracts the eye, so discreetly employ them (instead of commas) to set off a phrase.

Invert your sentence structure, too, to captivate skim readers, so contrast the eye-catching value of the second sentence below:

(1) She ran from the scene, screaming in terror.

(2) Screaming in terror, she ran from the scene.

For your opening word (if emotion-arousing) wins readers far better than "He," "She," "We," "The," etc.

So send for my booklet "How to Write Salable Copy," enclosing a long stamped, return envelope, plus 25 cents and learn how to "package" printed material more enticingly!

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

Delaware, the first colony to ratify the Constitution and thus the first state, claims only one military skirmish during the Revolutionary War, the Battle of Cooch's Bridge, a brief encounter between Gen. Howe's and Gen. Washington's troops during the British advance on Philadelphia. Delaware, The World Almanac notes, made a significant contribution of troops to the war effort: 1,000 militia and 2,386 Continental Army.

They Just Go On and On and On.

Joe Torre is one of the most dependable players in the National League.

He was on All-Star and an MVP. He sports a lifetime .300 average. And after 16 years, he's still going strong.

In its own league, a Beetle is just as reliable as Joe. A lot of Beetles are still on the road with over 100,000 miles on them. Which shouldn't be surprising considering the pains we take to build them.

Every Beetle is coated with 13 pounds of paint, has a sealed steel bottom and is inspected by 1000 inspectors.

Then it's covered by the Owner's Security Blanket with Computer Analysis, the most advanced car coverage plan in the world!†

Just as important these days, the Beetle gets an economical 33 mpg on the highway and 22 mpg in the city.*

And should you ever decide to sell it, you'll be amazed at how much money you'll get back.

Speaking of money, this is where the similarity between Joe Torre and the Beetle comes to an end.

You can get a Beetle for a lot less than it would cost you to get Joe.

Tries to prove brother's execution was senseless

George Hamilton portrays a man who encounters the supernatural as he attempts to prove that his brother was condemned for a crime he didn't commit, in "The Dead Don't Die," to be colorcast on the "NBC World Premiere Movie" series Tuesday (repeat of Jan. 14, 1975), 7:30-9 p.m. In the drama, set in 1934, Don Drake (Hamilton) gets special leave from the Navy to visit his brother Ralph (Jerry Douglas) in prison, just before his execution for murder. Ralph tells him he didn't commit the crime and pleads with Don to find the real killer.

Don's investigation leads him to marathon dance promoter Jim Moss (Ray Milland); a shady character, Frankie Specht (James McEachin); an enigmatic woman, Vera La Valle (Linda Cristal); and a strange and evasive antique shop clerk (Joan Blondell).

Ralph Meeker appears as a police lieutenant.

"The Dead Don't Die," a Douglas Cramer Production in association with NBC-TV, was written by Robert Bloch and directed by Curtis Harrington.

Tuesday, June 17, 7:30-9 p.m., NBC World Premiere Movie presents "The Dead Don't Die."

Ask Dick Kleiner

By DICK KLEINER

DEAR DICK: My sister says that Elton John has a $40,000 Monopoly game. Is this true? Also, what was his first song and what year did it come out?— WALLY LONG, Eight-Mile, Ala.

Elton is given to excesses but none of his representatives here have ever heard of a $40,000 Monopoly game. He is, they tell me, a backgammon addict and has several expensive backgammon sets. And he collects antiques. His first record was a single on the Uni lable, "Levon," which was released in 1971.

DEAR DICK: Does Paul Lynde have a sister or close relative in show business? I don't know this woman's name but she looks and acts so much like him, I'd swear they're twins.— GAYLE STEVENER, Fultonville, N.Y.

You're probably thinking of Alice Ghostley. Ever since they made their Broadway debuts together, in "New Faces of '52," people have been marveling over the resemblance. They look alike and sound alike but are not related. Curiously, they are currently working together in a stock company show, "Stop, Thief, Stop!!" Paul has two sisters. Neither is in show business.

DEAR DICK: I read recently that Glenn Ford was a Naval Reserve captain and fought in the Battle of Midway in World War II. But I recall when Glenn previously said he had been a Marine in World War II. What's the true story?— R.G.M., Atlanta, Ga.

Wherever you read that about Ford being in the navy you read misinformation. Ford was definitely a Marine and served for 2½ years during World War II.

DEAR DICK: Is the office of Ironside that is located in San Francisco really true?— M.I. KENNEDY, Eureka, Calif.

The exteriors were shot there, but the interior— Bob Ironsides' office itself— was built on a Hollywood sound stage. The whole thing is a fiction.

We'll start you off with $100,000

That's right, an instant estate of $100,000 at the start of your career. It's made possible by Metropolitan's Decreasing Insurance Whole Life... an exciting insurance plan for young people on the way up. For example, a young male age 25 can set up an initial estate of $100,000 for $40.00 a month! At age 30, $42.00.

Part of the $100,000 is permanent insurance, most is term. At given times some of the term insurance ends and you can replace it with permanent insurance. This increases the premium during the years when you expect your earnings to increase. You can keep the full $100,000 protection and build more cash values for your family and your own future.

Call me for details.

Baseball Italian style previewed

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — If you hit into a double play in Italy, you're booed, jeered at and otherwise defamed for causing "la doppia eliminazione."
Still, the phrase "sounds so nice you don't mind going back to the minors," reports Joe Garagiola, who last month surveyed baseball, Italian-style, for his Monday night baseball warmup show on NBC-TV.
His findings, to be aired June 23 and 30, concern the 111-team

Italian Federation of Baseball and the way the old ball bounces in places like Parma, Bologna, Milan and Nettuno.

Italy's brand of baseball, he says, is comparable to what we'd expect from a good college team here. But this is partly because baseball still is young in Italy and it's not even played in high school.

Another reason, he adds, is that the Italian teams, who do battle just on Friday nights and weekends, aren't even paid.

A Hollywood story: Clerk turns star

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—A year ago, Julie Kavner was working as a clerk-typist in UCLA's graduate department of architecture. Then she was cast as Brenda, the kid sister on CBS's Rhoda series, and her whole life changed.

It's another of those it-can-only-happen-in-Hollywood stories. In those 12 months, Julie Kavner was transformed from nothing to something, from clerk-typist to star.

"The year has really brought me two things," she says. "It made me in demand and it gave me a place at the beach."

In demand? Sure, she was asked to star in stock during her hiatus. She did a seven-week run at a theater in Chicago in "Three On a Honeymoon," without even having to audition. And, because of her TV fame, she was a big drawing card.

The place at the beach, she says, had long been a dream—"a someday-maybe dream"—but it has come true. She rented a Malibu apartment and that's now her home.

"The difference," she says, "is that now, when I redecorate, I can do certain things I didn't do before. I used to get posters and thumbtack them to the wall—but now I frame them. It's the same furniture—furniture my folks had—but somehow it looks better now." And that's after only one year. Wait 'til next year.

United Artists spent more than $200,000 on one splashy weekend to introduce the new Peter Sellers film, "Return of the Pink Panther." It was like the old Hollywood.

Sellers and producer-director Blake Edwards and many stars were there and so were plenty of press. They had the affair in the plush LaCosta resort in Carlsbad, Calif., near San Diego, and the motif of the weekend was very pink.

There was a screening of the film—a complete delight. Here's one film you can take the family to and know that everybody will enjoy it.

Edwards says there is talk of a "Pink Panther" series for TV but he thinks it would be almost impossible.

Dixon man honored

ITT Continental Baking Company's Davenport, Iowa, bakery recently honored 41 sales and transport drivers who have driven for the company for five years or more without a chargeable accident.

One of them, Lewis R. Quaco, Dixon, qualified for the National Safety Council's Two Million Mile Club, and received a Council plaque at a luncheon given to the drivers.

Seventeen drivers qualified for the Council's One Million Mile Club, and also received citations. According to Ray E. Myers, bakery general manager, the records of the qualifying drivers represent a total of 516 years of accident-free driving for Continental.

Pamida sales hit record high

Pamida, Inc., parent firm of Gibson Discount Center, today announced that net sales for the first quarter ended April 30, reached a record $43,348,000, or an 18 per cent increase over net sales of $36,780,000 for the comparable period last year. Net earnings of $987,000 for the quarter ended April 30, were nine per cent greater than net earnings of $908,000 for the first quarter last year.

New selling space added during the first quarter totaled 31,100 square feet and consisted of two new locations, Iowa Falls, Iowa and Marshall, Minn., and one relocated store in Ely, Minn.

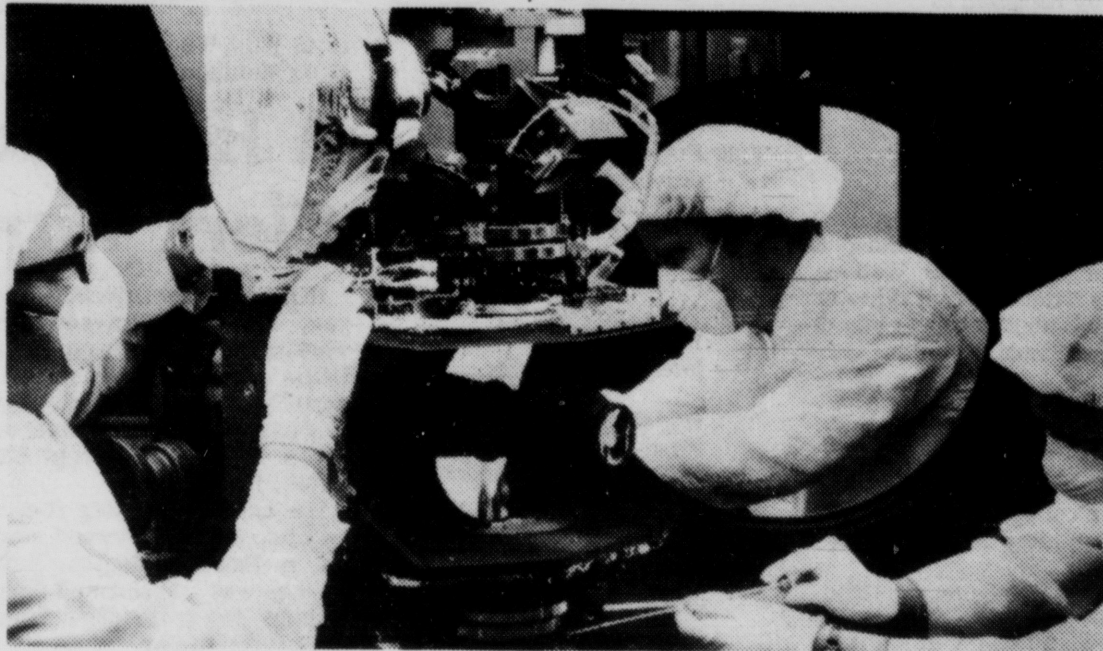

Current plans call for the adding of approximately 400,000 additional square feet of selling space this year and the addition of 50,000 square feet of warehouse space to the existing warehouse. Stores are planned for 12 new communities and relocated stores are planned for 16 communities.

Changes corporate structure

FORT WORTH, Tex.—Speaking before members of the financial community in Los Angeles recently, Charles D. Tandy, chairman and chief executive officer of Tandy Corporation (NYSE), parent company of the nationwide Radio Shack store chain, announced board approval of a plan which would separate the businesses of the corporation into three distinct publicly held companies. Shares of the newly created companies would be distributed directly to shareholders of Tandy Corporation in the form of a tax-free dividend. The distribution is scheduled for late September, 1975.

Under the plan, Tandy Corporation would carry on the consumer electronics operations, represented by Radio Shack, Tandy International Electronics, Tandy Electronics manufacturing and Allied Electronics, as its sole business.

A principal purpose of the plan, according to Tandy, is to simplify the corporate structure, and to permit a more specialized and distinct management leadership of the three basic and diverse businesses of the company.

Anchor rejects proposal, reports record earnings

LIBERTYVILLE— The Board of Directors of Anchor Coupling Co. Inc. has unanimously rejected the acquisition proposal made several weeks ago by Amerace Corporation, following a thorough review, Thomas Hollingsworth, president, has announced.

"Our current financial record as well as our basic strength were principal factors in the decision," he stated. He said it now appears that net income in the fiscal year ending June 30 will exceed management's earlier forecast of $1.70 per share. This will compare with 67 cents per share earned last fiscal year and 40 cents per share in fiscal 1973. Hollingsworth said management projects a further increase in earnings in the next fiscal year. The projection assumes the general economy will be flat through Dec. 31, then show a modest recovery trend, he said. "There are two principal reasons we expect to continue to improve even if the economy continues as at present," stated Hollingsworth. "The programs introduced by the present management team since assuming responsibility in late 1972 will produce further benefits. Also, major markets for the company's products continue strong."

Hollingsworth pointed out that Anchor Coupling's products are essential components of heavy construction equipment which continues in strong demand for use in natural resources industries, especially petroleum and mining. A second major market is agricultural equipment, which requires significantly more hydraulic components systems due to increasing size and power.

"Under the circumstances, our board felt that the proposal to purchase Anchor for an estimated $18.5 million, or $14 a share, does not adequately take into account the company's current record, asset values, and promising prospects—values which we feel belong solely to our shareholders," the Anchor Coupling president stated. "A combination with Amerace would give little to Anchor Coupling's shareholders, employees, customers and suppliers, although it would obviously give much to Amerace."

Hollingsworth stated that the board, in reaching its conclusion as to the inadequacy of the offer, had the benefit of independent financial advice. Response from shareholders has been overwhelmingly opposed to the offer, according to Hollingsworth. "This response has been very heavy," the executive said. "It includes large and small holders, many present and former employees and investors in the immediate vicinity of the company's plants."

In expanding on the company's results, Hollingsworth pointed out that the company has experienced earnings and sales increases for eight consecutive quarters, as compared with the preceding year's period, with the ninth consecutive quarterly increase now assured.

Agent completes course

Richard T. Vivian, Dixon, Country Companies agent, recently completed the company's Life Indoctrination School. The week-long school was held June 2 through 6 in the County Companies home office in Bloomington.

The life indoctrination school is part of a very extensive training program for all new Country Companies agents. It is designed to develop the individual agent into a highly professional insurance counselor and salesman.

The Country Companies consist of Country Life, Country

Mutual, Country Casualty and Mid-America Fire and Insurance Companies and Country Capital Investment Fund, Inc., a mutual fund.

During the week-long session, Vivian was provided a considerable amount of technical and sales information. He was given extensive training in many areas of the life insurance business with the goal of increasing his overall abilities to serve his clients. He is scheduled soon for additional instruction in property and health insurance.

Study shows vacations increase

NEW YORK (AP) — Paid vacations are getting longer.

This might seem to be a distorted reflection of the present economic scene, with millions looking for work and not finding it and others unable to afford a vacation even if paid. But it is indisputable fact.

A survey of corporation vacation practices in 1964 showed only 2 per cent permitted paid vacations of up to five weeks. A similar survey about a decade later showed the percentage at 28. And the six-week vacation had arrived.

The Conference Board, which conducted both surveys of about 1,800 concerns, found that paid time off costs companies the equivalent of an average 8.2 per cent of payroll in 1973, up more than one per cent in six years.

Vacations and days off for personal affairs also may be getting more frequent. Time off for birthdays, and floating holidays, to be used when and as desired, are among the innovations.

The notion of paid time off has come a long way from the early days of the Industrial Revolution, which was supposed to have put machinery to work in behalf of mankind but which may have affected just the opposite.

Time off with pay apparently now is becoming one of those inalienable worker rights.

One of the biggest changes found by the board, which describes itself as a private, non-profit educational and research organization, was the addition of two paid holidays in the past decade.

Most companies now recognize six standard holidays and three more that vary with the employer. New Year's Day, Memorial Day, Independence Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas are standard almost everywhere.

No other single day was specified by a majority in the study, but the most commonly named were: Thanksgiving Friday, Good Friday, Washington's Birthday, Veterans Day, Columbus Day and a day before or after Christmas.

While it is true that a growing number of companies now grant five- and six-week annual vacations with pay, the average company's maximum still remains close to four weeks.

In most companies, the board found, that is the reward for a minimum of 20 years of services. Typically, 10 years of service usually earns a worker three weeks of paid vacation time.

Nonoffice workers are treated less generously than office workers in the category of non-leisure paid time. Coverage of jury service and bereavement leave is almost universal for both categories is widespread, but then the differences appear.

Office workers generally are paid during time off because of trial witness service, military duty for summer encampments and civil emergencies, voting, and for medical and dental appointments.

About half the companies paid nonoffice workers for brief, temporary military duty, but almost any other remaining time is at their own expense.

Women's lib stirring film cauldron

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — More and more films are being started which feature women in the protagonist's role. More and more women are getting bigger and bigger jobs in Hollywood studios. More and more women are selling scripts for movies and TV shows.

The feminist movement is working — at least in Hollywood. And most of the new crop of Hollywood female workers give the credit to the Women's Lib movement, although most say they aren't Women's Libbers themselves.

"I give all the credit to the Women's Lib movement," says Monique James, head of Universal's new talent program. "Oh, absolutely. It was the movement. I'm not a joiner of movements but the movement brought it all to the consciousness of Hollywood and the producers."

"I don't think anything would have ever happened," says Tina Nides, Warner Bros.' new story editor, "without the Women's Lib movement. Nothing ever happens in this country without a movement to draw attention to it. Nothing ever happens peacefully. It takes violence or something to get anything done."

"I think it all began," says successful writer Leigh Chapman, "when Women's Lib got so big they couldn't ignore it any more. Now Hollywood wants films dealing with liberated women."

Miss Chapman says she prefers writing about men but has just finished a script, "Sunreach," which is "a ladies' script." She says Hollywood is crying for scripts featuring ladies, so she wrote one.

She describes her previous films — items such as "Truck Turner" and "Dirty Mary, Crazy Larry" — as "macho" scripts. And she says that the fact that she is a woman (and, incidentally, a beautiful one) has never held her back in any way.

Actress Tina Louise, however, believes that women write better for women than men do. Although she says that times are better for women actors now than they have ever been she still believes it would be even better if there were more women writers around — "and, of course, as far as I know there are no women directors at all."

But she is optimistic about her own career because she feels that now, at last, she can do something other than sexpot roles. In the new climate of Hollywood, they are letting women play stronger roles. She was, for example, a costar in "The Stepford Wives," a controversial women's film.

"I think," she says, "it made a very strong pro women statement. Really, it was a warning to women as to what might happen to them if they don't watch out. And yet some feminists completely misinterpreted it and feel it's anti-woman. It's not, at least I don't think it is."

There have been other recent pictures dealing primarily with women. And Universal's Monique James predicts many more.

"Today," she says, "they are writing parts for women again. It used to be that most films were for women, in the days of Crawford, Loy, Harlow, Colbert. But then something happened and it all changed. I'm not sure what it was, perhaps the war, perhaps when they realized that many of the women stars of that era looked good but really couldn't act."

Today, she says, it is no longer beauty that counts. In fact, beauty can be a detriment to a girl's career. There are some good-looking girls around, but the overriding prerequisite today is acting talent.

"There are lots of women's pictures today," she says. "Even 'W. C. Fields and Me,' which is shooting here, is as much Valerie Perrine's picture as it is Rod Steiger's. She plays the 'Me' of the title — Fields' love, Carlotta."

One of the pictures which has given a big boost to the current rush was Ellen Burstyn's "Alice Doesn't Live Here Any More." Tina Nides says she found that one for Warner Bros. and perhaps this is why they recently boosted her to the post of story editor for the studio.

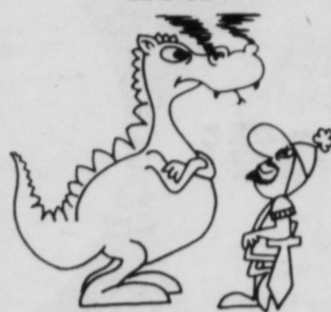

"But a lot of women's pictures cross my desk," she says, "that I don't like. They wouldn't make good movies and we're not in business to make good pictures."

"There's no doubt that the pendulum is swinging and that there are more and more scripts about women, about women who are larger than life. The problem is that there is no one to play them who means a lot at the box office. It's a vicious circle — they want films about women and yet no women stars have been developed."

Most of Hollywood's women executives — still a minority but growing — say they have not encountered any male chauvinistic prejudice on their climb up the ladder.

Musk for Dad

Although we have been celebrating Father's Day for many years, did you know that it was only in 1972 that the day was officially recognized? And that it took two women to help along its establishment?

First, Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane, Washington, conceived the idea in 1909 as her way of honoring her father, who raised six motherless children. President Wilson showed his approval by having a Father's Day button pressed in the White House in 1916 and President Coolidge recommended national observance of the day. For the next 30 years or so, however, nothing much happened, then Sen. Margaret Chase Smith spoke out, chastising the conduct of the Congress in this matter. "Either we honor both our parents, mother and father, or let us desist from honoring either one. But to single out just one of our two parents and omit the other is the most grievous insult imaginable." Finally, in 1972 the day was established permanently when President Nixon signed a Congressional resolution. His action eliminated the need for an annual designation and put Father's Day on the same continuing basis as Mother's Day.

In selecting your gift for June 15, consider something he will enjoy every day—Monsieur Houbigant Musk, for example—a sensuous scent designed to bring him pleasure.

There's the oil to be smoothed on the usual way.

Should he boast a moustache or a beard, or both along with sideburns, the musk can go there too. For the smooth shave, there's Musk Cologne-After Shave, which splashes on everywhere with a zest and elan which no other apres shave can produce. In fact, he doesn't even have to shave to use it—and you can let him know that you love this pure masculine, stimulating and long-lasting musk fragrance. He, or you, can add the Musk Talc and Musk Spray or Stick Deodorants in the same wonderful scent.

The other men's fragrance that would make your man feel total and contemporary, innovative, and aware of all things and himself is Pierre Cardin. This has been designed, created and defined by a contemporary man "Pierre Cardin" himself.

The unique Pierre Cardin Cologne, warmed by the heat of the skin, projects the total man. A very sensual, yet thoroughly masculine blending of crisp citrus with warm amber and rare spices. A scent that is persistent, yet never over-powering.

This distinctive fragrance is carried through into every personal item. Cologne and Cologne Spray, After Shave Lotion, Soap, Anti-Perspirant Deodorant. Gift sets designed for the man of today.

Give Dad the "Pierre Cardin Personal Fragrance Collection for Men."

Other gift ideas found at the men's personal counter in the men's department at Kline's is a great musk after-shave cologne by Coty, and reasonably priced.
